Community of Learning (Kahui Ako)

The past 18 months have seen Mount Albert Grammar School working alongside eight of our contributing Primary and Intermediate schools as part of the Community of Learning initiative.

Over 7000 students are involved in the Mount Albert Community of Learning (Kahui Ako), making it one of the biggest in the country. At the centre of our work is the goal of raising student achievement throughout the school journey of our students from Years 1 to 13.

Joining a secondary school like MAGS for the first time can be a challenging step for a Year 9 student. While most junior students arrive at our school gates already armed with the precursors to learning, we are also conscious that each of those students will be at a different stage along their personal educational pathway.

Our Community of Learning is allowing secondary, intermediate and primary schools to better align practices and expectations and in doing so, smooth the transition into secondary education.

School leaders and teachers from across the eight schools are meeting regularly, sharing data about individual students and finding common goals to work towards. The ultimate outcome is better teaching and better learning.

The Mount Albert area is blessed with outstanding schools. While still in its early days, our Community of Learning promises to further strengthen each one of us.

Have a good weekend.

Patrick Drumm

Ms French said the dance competition was a fantastic experience, as was staying at a local marae.

Alberton performances

Alberton served as a stage today as well as inspiration for performances by Year 10 & 11 Drama Academy students.

As part of their NCEA assessment, students create a performance after researching the history of the historic homestead with a focus on the Kerr-Taylor family. They visit the site and hear from historians about the stories of the house.

Using these stories the students devise a performance as part of their NCEA assessment. Common themes include the status of women, financial hardship, and the impact of World War I. These are then performed at Alberton House. HoD Drama Gerald Urquhart said, "It works well as the students feel a tangible connection to the local history. The idea that they are playing characters who have actually lived in the place they are performing is fascinating for them."

Mr Urquhart added, "The work of the team at Alberton, especially Rendell McIntosh and Jocelyn McQuaid, has been invaluable."

Busy month ahead in Visual Art

Next Thursday starting at 4.30pm, E Block hosts the Board Show and Business Market Evening. Senior Visual Art students will exhibit their latest work, while Year 11 Business Studies students will operate stalls selling food, drinks and other products. Cash only.

It's the start of a busy few weeks in the Visual Art department, which launches into its Winter Workshops from June 25.

Visiting artists will work with students and give talks as part of the workshops.

One of the highlights will be the visit of Michel Tuffery, a renowned New Zealand artist of Pasifika descent, who will work with a variety of classes during class times and lunchtime to beautify the outdoor area beside E3. Also on the bill are Joon He Park, a surrealist painter; Lama Tone, a NZ architect with Pasifika influences; Tim Moss Mason, a 3D CG artist; and Jade Robertson, a professional illustrator. For the full schedule, click here

Back to nature

Two classes of Year 10 Ag students headed out to the Waitakere Ranges to learn about predators, birdlife and plant species in the natural environment.

With Arataki Visitor Centre as their base, the students were taught by Peter King, who was head of science at Green Bay High School for 27 years.

He showed them how to monitor predators using a Black Trakka tunnel and peanut butter. The students learned how to do a five-minute birdsong count, and how to use a quadrat to assess seedling regrowth.

HoD Agriculture and Horticulture Esther Hancock said, "The students agreed it was a fascinating day and are looking forward to writing a report about how farmers have an important role in kaitiakitanga – or guardianship of the land – in order to protect New Zealand's all-important clean, green image."

Masters of Monetary Policy

Mount Albert Grammar School has been selected as one of six schools to compete in the final of the Reserve Bank of New Zealand's Monetary Policy Challenge.

This is a national competition where students try their hand at making a Monetary Policy decision: setting the main interest rate that influences the cost of borrowing and interest paid on savings. The competition is directly influenced by Macroeconomic Achievement standards taught in Year 12 and Year 13 Economics.

Year 13 students Liam Milbank, Gemma Loveday, Anvilly Huang, Patrick Wong and D'arcy Brown presented an argument to Reserve Bank Economists on New Zealand's economic conditions and made a prediction for the Official Cash Rate (OCR) decision. They then demonstrated their understanding of Monetary Policy and Economic theory in a question and answer session. The finalists will travel to the Reserve Bank in Wellington for the national finals on 3 July to give an oral presentation and compete for the title of challenge winner. The winning team will be invited back to the Reserve Bank on 9 August to attend the Monetary Policy Statement media conference.
