According to the information on the grid Wayne Nicholls' subjects and the rooms he was in identify his teachers.

- History A3. HL (Harry) Calder.
- French B5. GS (George) Coldham.
- Latin B1. HF (Frank) Brock.
- Geometry/Arithmetic/Algebra/Trig B6. HL (Herb) Towers.
- Grammar/Literature/Elocution B2. JH (John) Harvey.

- “Lectures” also looks like English as does the mysterious “St Brook”. “Library” was silent reading. This was introduced by Gamble and enthusiastically embraced by Harvey. The School was said to be the first in New Zealand to offer a “free” reading period.
- Magnetism/Electricity/Chemistry. UL. W (William) Caradus.
- Drill was Military Drill, held once a week either in the quadrangle or on a field. The main field became six tennis courts and is now a carpark. There would have been classrooms for wet days.

Rooms have been renumbered and some have new uses. A1, A2, A4 and A5 were along the front corridor, all are now offices. The present A1 and A2 were the original Lower Lab. A6, A7 and A8 were along the north wing.

B1, B2, B3, B4, B5 were along the top corridor. The library was in the middle (where the staff room is now) and in the north west corner was the Masters Common room. B6, B7 and B8 were along the north wing.

The rooms now called B1, B2 and B3 were originally occupied by the Upper Lab.
